 - Similar to EDC, which also is funded through a $\frac{1}{2}$ cent sales tax
 - Broader scope of what the money may be spent on
- Creation required voter approval
 - Election held in May 1994

- <http://www.frisco.tx.us/government/boards/pages/communitydevelopmentcorporation.aspx>
- Public Health and Safety-Parks and open space have been described as the “lungs of a city.” As such, the CDC is committed to investing in earth-friendly projects that improve public health and the environment.
- Community Infrastructure-The CDC is but one element in a web of public entities that work to improve the city. We strive to proactively plan and participate with the ISD, FEDC, county, state and federal agencies to meet our objectives.
- Unique Sustainable City-Without a proper sense of place, a community can rapidly develop into a hodge-podge of individual developments with no connection to each other. The CDC looks to build Frisco into a destination city, while maintaining our heritage and “small town feel.”

- Excellence in City Government-The Board of the CDC is made up of citizen volunteers and is committed to remaining accessible to all residents in Frisco. Our meetings are open to the public and we welcome citizen input in all our decisions.
- Leisure and Culture-On top of open spaces, the CDC invests in the museums, the arts and the professional sports that make Frisco a place that draws visitors from North Texas and Beyond.
- Civic Involvement-The CDC is involved at all levels of city government, and beyond. We look to build regional cooperation to create projects that enhance life and leisure, while positioning Frisco as an economic force in North Texas.
